Join us on March 18 at 3 pm EDT for a deep dive into the process of cultivating a data-driven culture within legal aid organizations. This session will examine the critical steps to embedding data-driven decision-making into your organizational practices and culture. Drawing from real-world examples, panelists will share their experiences in creating a supportive environment for data use, tackling common challenges, and integrating evaluative thinking to inform decision-making at every level. Learn how data can be a powerful tool for improving client services, increasing accountability, and driving continuous improvement across your organization.

Speakers: Susan Bales, Sarah Freymiller, Jessica Price, Kylie Borges, Kelly Shaw-Sutherland (moderator)

Audience: Leadership, admin staff, legal staff, anyone with a vested interest in using data to inform decision-making

Required Skill Level: Beginner
